MEMORANDUM FOR: [REDACTED]

FROM: Executive Director

SUBJECT: DCI's Annual Report to Congress

Once again, we have an eleventh-hour request from the IC Staff for contributions to the DCI's Annual Report. As you may recall, last year's report was organized around a set of intelligence objectives and issues intended to echo themes set forth in the National Foreign Intelligence Strategy. This year's report will do likewise, but within the context of a discussion of such topics as consumer demands, the changing intelligence environment, and the need for flexibility in structuring resources. As in the past, notable achievements and shortfalls will be emphasized.

The IC Staff will again develop an integrated narrative from Community inputs. Contributions are due to the IC Staff by 13 January, so we will need to receive your contributions here by 9 January. As in the past, the IC Staff will draft the introductory section, and the NIC will provide a rundown on significant events of 1986 that affected national foreign intelligence activities or planning. We are asked to contribute to a section on consumer needs; this section will discuss the major requirements and demands placed on us by consumers. Contributions to this section should cite examples of global, regional, operational, or other requirements that have significantly affected resources. ①

The next section will discuss in some detail specific examples of significant activities which called for the provision of intelligence support in 1986, such as: ②

- o Operations or crises (e.g., [REDACTED])
- o Trade and economic policymaking (e.g., trade negotiations, energy policymaking, technology transfer).
- o Arms control negotiations, verification/monitoring.
- o Strategic relocatable targets/Soviet mobile missiles.

SECRET

- o Weapons research and analysis, including support to the SDIO.
- o Developments in the Third World, including political intelligence and the building of contingency capabilities.
- o Counterterrorism, narcotics.
- o Counterintelligence and security.

Inputs on other issues are welcome. Again, accomplishments and shortfalls should be noted.

Finally, all respondents are asked to contribute where appropriate to a section on the Community's application of the broad guidance contained in the National Foreign Intelligence Strategy, published at the beginning of the year. Contributions for this section should focus on the preservation of core capabilities in an era of deficit reduction, tradeoffs among priorities, the effects of change in the intelligence environment, support for operational forces, and notable shortfalls and challenges. (3)

In the interests of time, don't try to put together a polished narrative response; use key sentences and bullets. Classification is limited to the SI/TK level; paragraphs should be individually classified. It is hoped that the report will include graphics this year, so the IC Staff is soliciting suggestions for photographs or other graphics for possible inclusion in the final report. My Executive Assistant, [] will pull together the Agency contribution. If you have any questions, please contact him on []
